As someone who drives nearly 30,000 miles a year, it is extremely helpful to have traffic and weather reports up to date on the XM service. While passing through many cities during the same trip, I should not have to figure out what local station can report on traffic and weather conditions... I should be able to just pick the city from my list in XM and spend more time focusing on my drive and not on channel-surfing. The NAB is in it for the same thing many companies are in it for... to have to provide less service and make more money. This is ridiculous and the NAB should be forced to straighten up, and learn to compete in the American market.
